36 I don't think anyone saying "trust the plan" means "trust the plan, while doing nothing." Right now, that plan clearly is focused on the 6th. Our role is that of a force multiplier, though a visual "show of force."

Every man woman and child needs to be bombarding every relevant office holder you can with calls, texts, emails, letters, faxes, in person visits. You then have to show up on Jan 6th. Should we need to keep going after that....someone start charging mags...

Why would they care about calls, texts, emails, letters, faxes, and in person visits that their secretaries all handle, and that aren't nearly as incentivizing as CCP bribes?

"Take Action"... what kind?? YOU don't seem to have a concise plan either. Dude, we HAVE been protesting and showing up to events - what has that done exactly other than prove we're not backing down. What, you want another big protest?? Where? Do we go out rioting? Holding guns up in the air & making demands?? What will that do to get Trump's 2nd term and PROVE ELECTION FRAUD? Imo, any fight should come if the clear evidence fails to get Deep State to accept it - THEN they've stolen this country with illegal election and I can see going out for that purpose.

Trump caught a lot of wind from the 1st 2 big DC marches, & this one will be massive. As long as deep state sees millions willing to come when called, even peacefully, then Trump can bring his strongest hand with the traitors knowing that he can bring real people force at any moment he needs to.

27 Dooming is disinfo as well. It demoralizes and turns an uphill battle into a foregone conclusion.

▼ I appreciate discussion and valid doubts, but blackpilling is just as, if not more damaging than blind faith. Shit can actually get done by pure force of will. Remember that.

40 Ok, but calling everyone who raises a question a “doomer” is becoming the “white supremacy”

▼ argument of the Donald...it's losing all meaning because it's over applied. I think most people who come here start from a position of skepticism, and we shouldn't be slapping people down for asking questions and raising concerns. That's our greatest strength, so let's be careful about the name calling.

permalink parent save report block reply

▲ TotesNotKaren 2 months ago +15 / -3

12 We really need to return to a differentiation between ‘dooming’ and ‘concern trolling’.

▼ There are valid concerns that can be brought up without acting as a demoralizer like concern trolls do. “I am concerned about Trump's action on this, someone explain more info” vs “I love Trump, but this is really concerning, maybe he's compromised/unable to act”, which casts doubt on Trump and makes him seem potentially useless or corrupt, in violation of rule #1.

Dooming, as it started and I still view it, is just blackpilling. There are days when every Pede gets into a funk, but no matter what happens, it's never as bad as we imagine it will be. 4 years of Trump have shown that he is not to be underestimated. If we are in a funk, it's not a good time to be spreading negativity all over others that might be pushed into a dooming frenzy of their own. I think a lot of this is actual infiltration, but we should be aware of ourselves. Lift each other up, don't demoralize.

▼ Fair enough. We just need to be careful that we don't eat ourselves the way the left does. As you say, there are times we all feel down, so it's good to put proper context on things. Let's not shit on disagreement and cast people out without some effort to lift each other up. Difficult times require us to stand on principle, and I just don't want us to become a mirror of leftist cancel culture.

3 Trust the plan is a meme, the plan was to win the election on election night and avoid all possible fraud, well that didn't work... then the plan was to go to court and get something going, well that didn't work... then the plan was the massive Kraken, well that didn't work... then the plan was to get your cases rejected quickly in order to get to SCOTUS, well that didn't work... then the plan was something about some date in December and some EO, well that didn't work... then the plan was the Texas lawsuit, well that didn't work... now the plan is Jan 6th.

If you truly believe the plan was to end up having to call for a massive rally on Jan 6th then you're fucking wrong, we're talking plan Z here, because all previous plans fucking failed. Anyone here truly believes that this is the ideal scenario? Ideally the fraud would've been stopped, that was plan A and it failed, there were a lot of subsequent "plans" and they all failed, one could argue they didn't really fail because it was all to build popular support for Jan 6th, but let's be real here, anyone really believe that? Anyone actually thinks Trump wanted SCOTUS to give him the finger instead of actually listening to the case and ruling in his favor?

This is all common sense and very basic logic, if you fail to understand my point and still believe "It'S aLI PaRt Of ThE PIAAn" then you're as retarded as your average /r/politics user.

MAGA is a movement which basically only exists because of patriotism, strong moral compass, and critical thinking. The left on the other hand are brainwashed sheep, so bad at this point they can't even believe their own eyes anymore. Like when they see a video of voter fraud in GA and think it's "debunked."

So we are critical thinkers, if we apply critical thinking to MAGA leaders or decisions, suddenly that's dooming? Trump has been backstabbed and betrayed by dozens, hundreds of people. More critical thinking and less "4d chess" would have prevented that.

I suspect from the start the "trust the plan" meme was a psychological attack to get people to do literally nothing all year while liberties were stripped one by one.

Everyone here hates the lockdowns and that piece of shit rat, Fauci, is still the public face of COVID. Why? "Trust the plan." Imagine an alternate reality where Fauci was fired in March, HCQ was widely used, and "slow the spread" only lasted for 15 days. Fauci is the cause of all that and nobody stopped him because they thought Fauci being a rat piece of shit was some kind of secret plan.

So if "trust the plan" didn't exist, Fauci would've been fired, because Fauci was worshipped as a hero all over TD because of "trust the plan"?

Does that mean that Trump "trusts the plan"? Because he is the one who has, and has always had, the power to fire him whether or not Qboomers "worship Fauci" (???) Fauci is a slimy rat that no one here likes, and therefore the left loves him.

I just hate getting told what to do. I don't mind posts like this that subtly mock questioners. But the posts that say Don't talk about x or If you don't believe y then you don't belong here drive me right up the wall.

Everyone is entitled to think what they like. We are not automotons. I have been wrong before I will be again. I have been right and mocked for it. But the subtle or outright telling people what to believe always gets a comment from me about how they are being jerks.

I agree with you. I hope for something to happen that will help our cause. I believe that Trump has outplayed the dems in most situations. I also believe that he has been thwarted and slowed down and misdirected by the depths of the swamp. So I hope that he will get inaugurated. I will be very sad if he is not. "Believe all the stuff I believe in the same way I believe it or you are BAD!!!!" is some brainwashed bullshit.

Remember when people were "doomers" if they didn't believe that "watermarked ballots" would end all of this nearly two months ago? Or servers seized in Germany? Were those people disloyal...

Or right?

People attacking and childishly lashing out at "doomers" WHO ARE ALMOST ALWAYS RIGHT stinks of fear and desperation. And panic. Grow up and realize it's not the doom you hate, they aren't even doomers, they are people with healthy skepticism. It's the setbacks you hate.

Nonsense. You're going to end up driving people off of the site.

Complacency comes from YOUR posts, killing the energy.

If you want to lead a rebellion or something, great. We're giving President Trump a chance to win, right now. If he fails, we then go to the next step. It's less than 3 months away.

The goal right now is getting as many people as possible for the 6th.

Also, you need to understand, that you're opening no one's eyes. Everybody knows that defeat is a possibility. Because they want to continue supporting President Trump, they focus on the positive.

If everyone thought like you, the site would die.

Everyone knows fully well everything your saying. They just have the consideration for their fellows to not sperg like a gamma.

“ But Pence or no Pence, Trump or no Trump. Biden will not be the President. Believe that.

I mean, he'll definitely never be any more a legitimate president than, say, Barack Obama was, but entertaining the possibility that takes the office one way or another is definitely not far-fetched at this point. I wouldn't say that any outcome at this point is a "foregone conclusion."

Let's look at what you said: "...entertaining the possibility that (he) takes the office one way or another is definitely not far-fetched at this point."

A completely useless, OBVIOUS statement, that sucks up energy, and adds nothing of value.

There's a strong possibility that: A. Biden enters the White House, B. Trump surrenders. C. Elections are never fair again. D. The suite gets taken down. We never do anything to fight back because we're fat lazy cowards, and E. China rules over us and our descendants, until America is exterminated.

Now, what good did writing any of that do? How did it help in any way? Obviously there's the strong possibility of everything going down in flames.

For some reason you guys think you're brilliant, for dwelling on things everyone else already knows.

EVERY path relies on elected officials at some point who we know we can't trust to side in Trump's favor. Even if we get that objector, then it goes to a 2hr debate which is not just wasted time. Theres a vote at the end to decide if its pushed to contingent election, of which you need the house to vote in favor of (good luck). Pence cannot just say "fuck all Biden votes in the contested states" and deny on his own Biden 270 and say "ok House, now you vote". That seems to be the "plan" people here are hoping for.

Or you could go back and read all of the solutions they came up with and all the ideas they had. Look, if you're too much of a pussy to keep up your morale when other people don't blindly trust the shit you tell them, then you are the problem. If you're too fucking weak willed to still keep your wits and morale about you, because people with different ideas is enough to "demoralize" you - that's your problem.

Do people actually believe the commies will stop sending this bill while in they are in congress? The only way you stop this bill is by replacing 95% of our government. Nothing else is going to work.

▼ Hate against doomers is just another Q psy-op of "Trust the Plan". Fuck you. Show fucking proof. Trumpo got his ass kicked by our Government corrupt system and now magically when he lost because of fraud he couldn't stop himself. He's going to kick ass?

▼ I don't deny theres a plan, I do however refuse to have blind faith it cannot fail given everything that has been thrown out, blocked or ended in a meaningless "hearing" with no action. I don't distrust Trump but we need help from people not in his inner circle and the GOP has pretty much said "fuck off, we would rather let Biden win than fight for Trump and have to have him get in the way of our uniparty"

5 I'm a realist. I don't believe Trump would still be fighting if he didn't see his path. He's personally telling us repeatedly to keep up the fight. I've trusted the guy for 4 years, and I'll trust him for another month. Personally, my opinion is that some part of the military is heavily involved with his plan. It may not be insurrection or EO or whatever, but the guy gets shit done against impossible odds every time.

2 Well, it does depend. In a historical context, the "rules" of republics changed often in the past. If you go back to Roman history, during its decline, there were two distinct leaders that used the military in an effort to restore the constitution. Sulla who killed everybody he thought corrupted it before returning it to the Senate, and Julius Caesar, who had a real chance of restoring it by bridging the divide between the people and the elites by making fair conciliations to both sides. The problem was that after he was killed.. there was no real succession. Either way, our republic is dying and drastic measures will soon be taken by someone in power regardless. The divide is too great and only growing more hostile.

4 How many more "It's happening!" bullshit do some of you have to endure before a lightbulb goes off? This is the other side of the coin of leftist brainwashing where their base constantly thought they had him.

any of the other examples of a massive echo chamber.

It's not happening. I'd love it if we could get four more years but the GOP, Dems, and activist judges aren't going to let it happen. Nothing will come of anything. Just like nothing came of any of the Dem or intel agency corruption.

3 Soon is right, because we are nearly one week from January 6th.

The problem is us "doomers" realize There is no longer 50, 40, or 30 days of trusting a plan and 4D Chess. The courts failed, state republicans caved to party money, and now it's time to rally and pray the unthinkable happens... swamp Republicans fighting for Donald Trump. It's not 0% but unfortunately, it's close.

I'll be their January 6th and praying to God I'm wrong, but at some point, the pardons, signing the spending bill, "the next administration... and maybe it will be me", are all little signs along the way of what no one hear wants to see. I don't want to see it either.

3 Been seeing this for four years now, wondering when it moves past internet signalling and protests politicians clearly don't care about because they have no incentive to.

Getting voted out isn't a threat when you just make 3x more money in the private sector still doing China's bidding, ya know?
